

What is claimed is:

1. A therapeutic agent for periodontal diseases which comprises an aqueous solution obtainable from dissolution, in water, of a mixture of a calcium carbonate
5 powder prepared by subjecting shells having a crystal structure comprising a calcite type of structure of calcium carbonate to grinding and primary firing, and a calcium oxide powder prepared by subjecting the calcium carbonate powder to firing at a temperature higher than the primary firing temperature.